

Got Biz Model Problems?

Goals:

- Transmit all the methods — very fast and they need to understand the most info possible.
- Tell my 3 money models that could work for personal training
- Actionable steps to create yours.

Topic Points:

- Give disclaimer that this is from Alex Hormozi's Money Model's Course.
- Tell all the money models, subdivide it into where they fit in the funnel
 - Attraction
 - Win your money back
 - Free Giveaways
 - Decoy Offer
 - Buy X get Y free
 - Pay less Now or... Pay More Later
 - Free With Consumption
 - Upsell
 - The Classic Upsell
 - Menu Upsell
 - Anchor Upsell
 - Rollover Upsell

- Downsell
 - Payment Plan Downsells
 - Free Trials
 - Feature Downsells
- Continuity
 - Continuity Bonus Offer
 - Continuity Discounts
 - Waived Fee
- Give My recommendation of a money model
- Steps to create one
 - Short Term
 - Long Term

Have a little loading bar at the bottom for each section.

Just Write:

Is your business model not making as much money as you want?

Today I'll talk about how you can increase that.

And there are a lot of ways.

Before we get to it.. all these tactics are from an amazing course from Alex Hormozi... but, really putting your mind to it for 3 hours every day will take you about 2 weeks to complete it.. and I tried to sum up all info in 5 minutes..

If you want a deep dive, go there. If you want quick results, go here.

So now, let get to it...

There are a few ways of increase LTGP, the first is adding more offer... and there are various types, but they fall into these bundles or buckets if you wanna call them that.

- Attraction
- Upsell
- Downsell
- Contuity

When starting out, the bundle that offers belong to should appear in this order...

Now let's talk about each specific bundle...

Attraction is the biggest one and it has 6 offers inside of it that you can use.

- Win your money back
- Free giveaways
- Decoy Offer
- Buy X and get Y free
- Pay less now or... Pay more later
- Free With Consumption

USE LKATER: Remember when I said "never do discounts" what I said was "never do discounts, unless from the prospect's perspective you get the same value, just in diferent ways"

Win your money back is pretty simple:

They put money on the table to have some skin in the game, to get their money back they need to get results, do certain actions or both.

This is very powerful in creating 6 week "get fit" challenges. For example.

Honestly I recommend you to do both, that way, they will go toward the results, and they will do the steps the get there.

Okay... how do you make money from this? First, remember that for the most part, they are likely to get their money back, so you will ask them to pay you another way.. referrals, transformation pictures...

Plus, attractions offers are not designed to really make that much money, they are just designed to get people in the door...

Because then, walfway through the problem, you can upsell them.. we'll get to that in a second

Free giveaways are next:

Here you have a product or a thing people REALLY want.. such as 6 months of free personal training. Or 6 months worth of supplements. And don't worry... because this will make you a lot of money.

That way people sign up... now, you need to filter out the best person.. to do that you ask for a lot of info, not only contact and eligibility info but other research data like psychographics, demographics and behavioral data.

Now here's the real money maker... after we announce the winner we privately talk with applicants that DIDN'T win that we found that were great people to get in the business...

And then we offer the thing you want to sell at a 20-50% discount. And to do that first grab your thing, increase the price by 20%, and bring it back to the original, works every time.

And then actually make the free giveaway offer have all the things that make sense such as guarantees and stuff like that.

Decoy Offer:

Ok so this one is really interesting.

This is basically advertising a free version of your thing... and then presenting the premium thing.

So, grab the offer.. if it's a nutrition program that you're selling, chunk it down and remove the costly elements of that offer... remember the individual solutions of the offer. Peel them off.

And make it close to 0 cost, while trying to offer the most value possible to maximize profit. This is kind of a number's game, you'll have to find some balance between cost and lead flow.

So, your before personalized nutrition program is now a form they fill up, it gives them a type such as A1, or B2, and then they pick their thing. This is an example.

Oh one more thing... there is a spectrum between discount and show up rate... so you will have to balance those 2 things aswell

Then when they show up to the call, present the premium offer FIRST.

If they ask for the free thing, present that after.

After that simply do the "are you here for lasting results or free stuff"?

And go the premium.

If they say free stuff.. give them the thing and let them go... we could sell... but honestly we have so many other methods to increase LTGP that it's not just a priority, you want the people who are genuinely interested.

Then we have the classic buy X get Y free...

Which many businesses do wrong.

You can go.. they if you buy 3 weeks of supplements.. the 4th week is on the house... this will incentivize people to pay in bulk. This also works with personal training.

Just remember that you need to be very careful with discounting, this is a balancing game, start small.. that way your numbers don't fall over.

To do this really well... just raise the price of 3 weeks of supplements.. the price of 4 weeks and discount it.. people will think the supplements are better and you'll make more money... there will be a cost in conversions... so it's also kind of a balancing game here.

Pay Less Now... or Pay More Later

Ok so this one is really interesting and useful. Let's say that you were doing a small group coaching... for the sake of the example let's say it's in person... and that you teach everything about nutrition...

And that you are selling that for $300.

Then you could go... pay $300 if you achieve XYZ outcome for this small group coaching session... or... pay $167 now.. and get all personalized supplements for free for the next 2 weeks along with amazing bonus 2 and 3.

Remember, these attraction offers will be at the same level of an opt-in.. they are not meant to make you all the money in the world... upsells are... and these offers lead to the upsell.

Free with consumption

Here you give a free thing... a class of some sort.. on muscle building for example..

And then you upsell them the next problem they have.. because after learning about muscle building... the next thing they need to worry about is equipment or supplements...

You can do that in a webinar/course/or video.. since this requires you to keep people engaged for hours... this is a move you must only do after you master engaging people for long period of time.

All right.. and that is attraction... and having them inside your business we need to make money from the business... that is where upsells come in.

The Classic Upsell:

Ok this one is my favorite for you specifically, specially to make money...

This is like.. "hey, you can't have a burger without fries..."

You can't have 1-1 personal training without the supplements or equipment.

Prescription upsell:

This is also one my favorite upsells, listen up:

People need diferent supplements for diferent goals... so let's use that... you have this huge catalog of supplements, bars, meal prep and all other stuff...

So, firstly.. have an idea of what they want... by this stage you should have an idea of what they want.

Next grab the stuff they don't need and say like:

Okay, so you wanna lose weight, so you don't need this, this and this...

And then we prescribe what they do need like an expert. Like: okay you will need this at this time, this at this time, and this at this time.

Explain how the prescription integrates with thing they already bought.

Personalize and detail to maximize value...

Then we ask... okay would you like Chocholate Cookie flavored weigh protein or banana flavor... Whatever it is... just ask them to make a decision. Because... they can't say no.. you're making them do micro-commitments. The close rates on this are insanely high.

Next... if you already have their card on file, ask them "Wanna pay with the card on file" — and then do the sale.

Rollover Upsell:

This is one of the most awesome ones.. because if I was a client I would love this...

Remember the win your money back guarantee.. here's we're gonna say... "hey, so, you've put $600 into this... what if we do this for the long term... say 6 months and I'll credit these $600 to the price over the 6 months... meaning $100 less every month"

Then guess what you do — you increase the price by $100 per month...

Do not give them months free... because it sucks... specially upfront. This way you get good clients and you make them happy.

After upsells we need to worry on what we do if people say no... that is where downsells come in....

By the way.. in my opinion you should do downsells last.. what makes more money is upsells.. make provides security is continuity... downsells turn no's to yes's... but upfront yes's usually pay more... so we want to get them all first... that's why I focus on doing upsells first...

And since this is done over time.. downsells should be reserved after you make your 2nd or so upsell... there are no rules, you can make one now... but if we want to make the business model better... I think those are the biggest levers.

Payment Plan Downsells:

So the first 2 I love because they just change the terms and not the actual thing.

Firstly, you want to give them a reward for paying in full... such as a 20% discount... you know how it is... you increase the price by 20%, but what matters is how it looks.

This will guarantee people will not take this for unethical reasons...

Second, you want to use either layaway or credit card. For credit card might sound hard, but just be like "would you rather I decide the payment terms or you decide?". When they say the latter, tell them to use credit.

You can also do half now or half later.

And if after trying two payment plans they say no... do a temperature check, ask: "Got money is tight right now.. real quick... on a scale of 1-10 how bad do you want this thing."

8 or above... continue...

8 or below.. we move to feature downsell.

Which are basically just chunking down parts of your offer...

There is a gazillion ways you could go about this... but here's the structure...

First.. remove the thing they love.. such as the guarantee and reduce the price a little... here they'll try to climb back to the offer... if they don't we move to step 2...

Remove a thing they don't need and reduce the price by a lot... Here's a few things to get you thinking:

- Time Availability:
 - Come specific times vs. whenever you want.
 - Days of week: Mon/Wed/Fri vs. All Days
 - Times of day: 9 to 5 vs. 24hrs
 - Amount of time: 15 min support calls vs. 60 min support calls
- Cancellations:
 - Reschedule fees vs. free
- Speed of Response:
 - Reply in minutes vs. hours vs days etc.
- Speed of Delivery:
 - Wait in line vs. priority
 - Some day/next day
 - Next week
 - etc.
- Service Ratio:
 - One-on-one
 - one-to-many
 - many-to-one
 - + any in between
- Communication Method:

- Text support
- Chat Support
- Video Call Support
- etc.

Then continue removing stuff until they accept... as you find that more people follow this pattern you can create new offers or “plans” if you may.. and give them names.

Now let's get to continuity offers... these increase LTGP but decrease 30 day GP. In other words.. you get less now but more later.

Continuity bonus offer:

The customer gets an awesome thing if they sign up today... so if you have an attraction offer such as a challenge for $600 you could be like:

- Or... join our membership for $200 a month and get this amazing bonus...

It's important for the thing you're offering in exchange for the membership to be more than 33% the price of the membership... because that way 50% will buy the membership and 50% the challenge... here's a graph...

Do what you want — if you want long term stuff... go that way. And if you want short term — that way.

Continuity discount...

Here you could be like:

Buy 4 weeks for personal training and get 2 free... so 6 weeks in total.. I recommend putting the 2 weeks at the end... it'll be easier to upsell and you'll filter out freebies... contrary if putten at the start.

And if they cancel... add a canceling fee... but nobody ever did that... well they make the industry average... or less.

Besides making more offers... increase conversions... which by the way involves good marketing and copywriting and all that jazz in client acquisition... get more referrals... which means the cost per lead goes down significantly.. you can make a new version of your stuff that is better... you can sell a higher quantity of it... and lastly.. getting the timing right....

Now for the kind of money model I'd do...

I'd definitely start with a win your money back offer into a lose 20 pounds 6 week challenge.

After that... I'd sell them supplements and equipment through the program... if they refused the win your money back offer, I'd downsell them to an attraction offer, a Free With Consumption offer of a small group free coaching on nutrition... on that free coaching I'd sell them personal nutrition programs.

If they took that I'd do a prescription upsell into supplements

Then for the people who took the challenge at the 3rd week... I'd sell them to long term results... since the Win your money back was just to get their attention... because "if you lose 20 pounds will you be happy forever?" I'd do a upsell to 1-1 coaching.

If they said yes... I'd do a continuity bonus offer for 4 months. And give them 1 month free... this is a numbers game so we'd adjust.

Then, I'd do a prescription upsell on the equipment and supplements they need. And an optional classic upsell later on into lunchboxed meals...

In case they can't afford my 1-1 training... I'd do a payment terms upsell and after that if they didn't accept that I'd barter... I'd be like: well can you bring in affiliates in the door in exchange for a decrease and that way I can cover the costs.

For example.

If they still didn't accept that... I could change features with a feature downsell...

Pretty good aint it... now... offers are to be added as layers of paint... use this as an example and think... hmmm... what could add the most money to my business?

I recommend with upsells but each business is a business... I can't recommend much, because I don't know how developed your funnel... if you're seeing this you've already booked a call.. which is good... you can talk about it there...

For now... see the funnel I created in the figma link in the button

Edit: