

Getting Affiliates

Goals:

Tell them how to get affiliates

Give them an email sequence

Topic Points:

- Clients vs Affiliates (why it's the same)
- Make a list of companies you'd like an affiliation to
- Outreaching & Leading with value
 - What cards to use
 - Timing
 - Sequence
- Benchmarks
- Extra Notes
 - Sometimes affiliate programs exist

Script:

Affiliates and clients are the same thing...

They are fundamentally necessary for your business...

I recommend doing cold outreach to your affiliates.

It tends to work... because an affiliation leads in with value...

But don't assume they will accept you.. they have to do work to let you win... so you have to prove your worth...

First.. have a list of companies you wanna have an affiliation with... equipment, nutrition, and all other stuff clients would like, make a list of that.

After that... you go to each company in the list and see if they have a partner or affiliate program.

For those... it's easy... just fill in the spots and answer the questions... if it's to send an email... then we gotta know how to send these emails..

There are 3 cards you can use:

- You are a personal trainer and you have helped XXX clients... so you have credentials.
- Your clients may already use the product.
- You made a video referring to it.

The last one is a killer.

So listen up... here's how you use this... good companies... busy ones... usually take a while to respond. But they are the most worth it. First... find where you can outreach to.

"Subject Line: Do you have an affiliate program?"

"Hey, so I am a personal trainer...

And I think [your product(s)] could help my clients out.

I already made some videos about it: [link]

And about XX of my clients use it.

But I wanted to make this official... so reply to me or you can always send the link for me to apply"

90% will respond to this — if they don't check the email address. You can send this to support or an important person in the company... thought they might think it's spam.

If they don't respond and you are sure the email is right.. wait a while... this takes time... 1-2 weeks... then follow up by forwarding the email you sent with this:

"Hey,

I reached out a few weeks ago?

Any updates?"

These things take time, specially if you're talking with an important person in the company... we'll reach out 4 more times.

1-2 weeks later:

"Here's how we're planning to use it:

[then explain, e.g]

We will give out a free nutrition class...

At the end of the class I sell the supplements... I do a personalized prescription and let the clients pick their favorite flavors."

then after that... 1 week for them to repond... ok then mention a specific event you did where you mentioned their product... show photos (screenshots also work is it's virtual)

"Hey, we just sold [product] to XXX people:

[photo]

[explain situation, e.g] We had a group coaching call about nutrition and at the end I gave them your supplements.

90% close rates.

Want to do an affiliation."

and lastly, 1 week later...

"Hey, so this is the last time I'll reach out...

Maybe I'm reaching out to the wrong person?

Anyways... anything tell me"

If they respond.. move on... we tried our best...

If they respond... book a call with them... and take all the doubts you have on a call... and decide on the terms.

They probably know how to deal with these situations... but you do want to ask a few things:

1. Ask if they can buy the product directly through you... that is... you make the prescription... you pick the products and get them sent to checkout
2. Ask if you can have a percentage of the product price... tell them you're fine with increasing the price for that... you say like "We increase the price by 40%, I put a 20% discount, saying that it's a call only discount and stay with the extra 20%"

Bam... that should solve the problem.

They will arrange an agreement, verbal or written with you.. sign it... ask them when everything's ready... and let them guide you...
